South Korea: Weapons Projects

After considering the matter for several days, Pak is reported to have canceled the weapons research projects and plans to build an NRX-type heavy water nuclear research reactor and a companion heavy water plant. It is still not clear if the South Koreans will cancel plans to develop a long-range missile intended to deliver sophisticated warheads.

Pak may not consider his decision irrevocable. He reportedly told his minister of science and technology that the nuclear project was "unwise at this time."
